Fitzgerald.

The Grass Valley Union thinks Parson Fitzgerald is in every way qualified for the office of State Superintendent. It thinks the Transcript opposes him because he is a Southern-born man. We would inform the Union that no such motive actuates us in opposing the political Parson. We care not where a man was born, or what his political or religious belief may be, provided when he gets securely seated in an important office he does not attempt to force his beliefs upon his constituents. Dr. Fitzgerald has once held the office for which he is at present a candidate, and upon the record he made then, we judge him now. We claim that all, or nearly all of his acts at that time, were bitterly partisan. He procured the change of school text-books at a cost of $50,000 to the people of the State, and adopted inferior books instead. One motive in changing readers, was to take the patronage away from a Republican publishing house—the Harpers. He changed Quackenbos' history, which was a good work, and contained 500 pages, for Swinton's, which contained only 312 pages, and had it adopted at the same price. The reason was, Swinton was a Democrat, and said but little about the rebellion, and that little divided the responsibility of the war equally between the North and the South. The book has been regarded as a failure by every teacher who has used it as a text book. He also had stricken from the list of books recommended for school libraries, every book referred to the rebellion. "Whittier's poems," "Oliver Wendell Holmes' work," "Oliver Optics' series of story books, "Carleton's days and nights on the Battle Fields," "Carleton's following the Flag," and "Gail Hamilton's works" were among the number. He compelled the State Educational Society to relinquish control of the California Teacher, because two of the editors appointed by that society were Republicans, threatening if they did not do so to withdraw the State support to the magazine, and start an opposition one himself. He discharged a competent architect employed on the State Normal School, because he was a Republican, and employed one less competent at a large salary, because he belonged to his own party. He invariably filled vacant places in schools, with party friends. He also lowered the standard of qualifications of teachers by admitting his friends who were unqualified, and when his successor took the office, it was impossible to tell from the record who held certificates, and who did not. All these and other things which can be named, we charge upon the Parson, and they are well known to any one who kept posted on school matters at the time he held office. We do not, as the Union charges "raise the bloody shirt over the mention of the name of Dr. Fitzgerald," but we claim that a man, who, when in office, allows party prejudice to govern his official relations, is unfit to be in the office of State Superintendent of Schools. We repeat, politics or religious belief should not enter into school matters. The question should not be asked what a man's politics is, before he is helped to a position of teacher, nor should his religious belief be questioned. In the public schools, all should fare alike. There is no bloody shirt in that. But there is a good deal of partisan spirit in Parson Fitzgerald, and that is one reason we oppose him. We have other equally as good reasons which we will mention hereafter.—Nevada Transcript.

The Effect of California on the World's Markets.

Prior to the golden days of '49 a man who had amassed $40,000 was counted well off, and men were satisfied to retire from business and enjoy the world at leisure when their fortunes had grown to these figures. But California, with her rich placers and lodes of gold and silver-bearing quartz, has lowered the relative value of the precious metals and commercial commodities, so that nowa days a man with $160,000 is no better off than the one used to be with his $50,000.

With agricultural productions our State has made the same difference. From her immense wheat fields, so handy to the sea, her grand harvests of grain have gone into the markets of the world, and bread, the staff of life is cheaper than it was before we commenced exporting breadstuffs.

Quicksilver, which was once almost exclusively obtained from Spain and Austria, is now produced by us, and in the State, ore exists in exhaustless quantities. In the London Market, quicksilver has fallen since last December from £25 per bottle (75 pounds) to £12—more than one-half.

In the past few years California borax has been introduced into foreign markets, and put into competition with that from other sources, and while in 1874, the price of borax in the English market was £100 per ton, it can at the present time be bought for £56.

The apparent influence of this State upon foreign markets is striking, and the materials that have been reduced in price, while they are still profitably produced, make it so much easier and more comfortable for the world's poor to live, so that they, as well as the rich, have reason to be grateful to California.—Santa Barbara News.

Attracting Attention.

Mr. Charles Wolcott Brook's theory that Asia was settled from America, and not from Asia, is attracting some attention. Mr. Brooks, whose paper, read before the California Academy of Sciences, has been mentioned in the Times, alleges that the probabilities are in favor of his view, for these reasons: 1st. That the Western Continent is geologically older than the Eastern, and, therefore, was earlier fitted for the development of the human species. 2d. That the ancient Chinese records say their ancestors came from across the sea. 3d. That the trade winds of the Pacific would carry a vessel from Peru to the coast of Southern China. Mr. Brooks mentions one striking circumstance which, if it is not a proof of his theory, is a wonderful coincidence: At Copan, in Central America, a two-horned figure has been found which is now unknown there, but which resembles closely the Chinese symbol of Fokee; and Chinese history records that Fokee was a great "stranger" king, who came from over the sea and introduced picture-writing among the Chinese. Mr. Brooks' theory is certainly a plausible one. That portion of the human race which inhabits the so-called Old World did certainly descend from the plateaus of Asia; but who knows but that the ultimate ancestors of the Asiatics came across the sea from the real old world, America? And who knows but that if we continue the investigation far enough, we shall find that Adam was a Digger Indian, and that the Garden of Eden was located somewhere in the Salt Lake Valley?

—"Speaking of extravagance in dress," writes Captain Crosstree, "the most expensively dressed man I ever saw was an African chief on the gold coast. His wives had annointed him thoroughly with palm oil, and then powdered him from head to foot with gold dust. You never saw in your life a man got up so "utterly regardless of expense.""

— The best of Christians occasionally have rags to sell, and it grieves us to state, also, that the best of Christians will sometimes sell an old flat-iron up in a ragged shirt and chuck it down in the bag, just to give it ballast.

— A popular preacher enriched his sermon accasionally with this jewel: "Remember, I beseech you, that we are sailing down the stream of time, and must inevitably land in the ocean of eternity."

—Sunday-school teacher to pupil: "Now, my little man, can you explain to us the cause of Adam's fall?" Little man (emphatically): "Yes, sir, 'cause he hadn't any ashes to throw on the sidewalk."

Cover Shingle, Tin or Iron

ROOFS,

On Very Reasonable Terms,

BY CONTRACT OR PER SQUARE FOOT.

The color is ornamental for roofs; resembling a highly polished slate. It can be placed on either tin or shingles already put on, and which are old, saving both the roof and rendering the same impervious to fire and water. In offering this PAINT to the public, we supply a need which has long been felt. Almost without exception shingled roofs have been left without any protection from the scorching sun and soaking storms, shrinking and swelling, and speedily going to ruin and decay, causing leaky roofs and expensive repairs. A preparation that could easily be obtained and applied to any roof, and would give ample protection, and not be affected by heat or cold, sunshine or storm, and be

FIRE PROOF

Against sparks and burning cinders falling upon it, and at the same time

Durable & Extremely Cheap,

Has been long and universally needed, and is now for the first time fully supplied by OUR PAINT.

For Tin Roofs it is Unequaled,

Being always flexible, it cannot crack and neither heat or cold affect it. All orders left at our office,

OAKLAND HARBOR

Strange as it may appear it is nevertheless true that there are many people who seem never to have heard of the great work now going forward at the mouth of the San Antonio creek, under the direction of Government Engineers and which is the beginning of what is expected to be the glory of Oakland. On nearly every train that traverses Long Wharf inquiries may be heard as to the object and nature of the improvement which may be distinctly seen from the car windows. For the purpose of noting the progress of the work, rather than giving any extended description, we have made a few notes from a recent conversation with the Engineer in charge. As is generally known, the design is to form a ... or perhaps more properly ... a channel, of sufficient ... to allow of vessels riding at ... by building two walls which shall run parallel from a point in low water to the main land. These walls will be nearly two miles in length. After the completion the channel is to be dredged sufficiently deep to accommodate ... low water vessels drawing ... feet. The depth is subsequently to be increased to twenty five feet.

The wisdom evinced in designing this plan of improvement is already demonstrating itself. We are given to understand that the north wall, which is only partially completed has already given a new direction to the tidal current, which has resulted in the scouring of the channel some two or three feet ... than usual in some places. We also understand that Col. ... the Chief Engineer of the project has lately caused boring to be made at various places along the line of the intended channel, for the purpose of ascertaining the nature of the bottom. The results have been exceedingly satisfactory as a thing harder than sand was not encountered. This fact of itself seems to ... the problem of the feasibility of ... the harbor of Oakland all that is desired.

A dispatch from Washington announces that United States District Attorney Van Dyke has been instructed to ... to institute suits for the condemnation of the lands necessary for the proposed canal to connect San ... bay with the estuary of San Antonio which is another part of the harbor improvements. The canal will cut through the narrow neck of land which connects the ... of Alameda with the main land. ... theory is that the tide waters ... will pass through the ... with sufficient force to keep the ... The training walls at the mouth of the harbor will give ... the tidal currents, which it is ... will be sufficient to accomplish by ... what would otherwise require ... dredging. From present appearances, we may safely conclude that Oakland ... the lapse of five years will have an excellent harbor one that will ... the commerce of the ...

If massacres occur between whites and blacks the fair and unprejudiced thinker will not attribute their origin to a people who have long been and still are unjustly oppressed. Self-preservation is one of nature's first laws, and if the unoffending black repels force with force he is only doing that which is suggested by both instinct and reason. We hope, however to hear of no more outrages in the South for they are a disgrace and a continual ... in the eyes of the civilized world.

Immigration continues to pour into California from all sections of the Union, and the bulk of the new-comers appear to be from localities west of the Mississippi river. Why they should come into our midst is easily explained. The long winters, the uncertain summers with alternate drouths and floods teach them that an even and pleasant climate, and a soil yielding vegetation with unerring certainty is the country for them to place their capital and labor. The frequent recurrence of the grasshoppers on the plains, is also causing the agriculturalists to crowd in upon the Pacific slope. They are now coming at the rate of from ... to ... per day, and yet there is room for thousands more, who, if industrious, can ... competency and standing in our local communities within a short space of time.

The Sewer Bonds.
City Treasurer Hillebrand claims that arrangements have been perfected for paying the sewer contractor and his workmen the same as if no financial panic had occurred.

Personal.
M. O. Moran has removed his restaurant and chop house to 848 Broadway, between Seventh and Eighth streets, east side, which he has fitted up in good style. Mr. M. furnishes his patrons with good "square meals" at a low rate of charge.

Oakland Reading Room.
The annual meeting of the Oakland Reading Room Association will be held at the Chapel of the Congregational Church on Monday evening, September 13th, at 7:30 o'clock, to hear reports, elect officers, and transact such business as may come before the Association.

Professor Steiner's Balloon.
Professor Steiner and lady were out driving through Contra Costa county yesterday in search of the lost balloon, but heard nothing of it. It is not improbable it may have gone off several hundred miles, and, if so, the probabilities of its recovery are small. Its value was about $100.

Good Meals.
If you want a first-class dinner, at a moderate price, consisting of the best the market affords of fish, flesh and fowl, cooked by a thoroughly competent chief, you need not go to the Maison Dorée, but can get it at Elmore's Hotel Dining Rooms, Newlands Hotel, corner Seventh and Washington streets. Price strictly moderate. A good stout boy wanted.

University Items.
A little son of Prof. Gompertz is quite ill.

The drum corps are now practicing regularly.

There are now about 14,000 volumes in the reference, and 1,500 in the circulating library.

There were many visitors out, yesterday, at Dr. Strentzel's lecture on "Orange Culture."

On Tuesday next the Durants debate whether the Bulletin was right in its denunciation of Ralston.

Bails, Berg & Co.
We took a look in at the picture gallery and frame manufactory of this firm a few days ago, and were surprised at the large number of beautiful pictures that are there to be seen. They are of all kinds, and in value range from $1 to $1,000. We also noticed some of the finest gilt and carved frames that are to be found, some of them very elaborate in their ornamentation and costly in their value. The firm is doing a satisfactory business, not only of a local character, but also in San Francisco, where their work is largely appreciated.

Mason's "Palace of Sweets."
In France, every building of importance is a "hotel," and in California every new institution of grandeur or beauty is a "palace." We have "diamond" palaces, "hotel" palaces, &c. In Oakland, the newest thing is the "Palace of Sweets," 965 Broadway, which Mr. J. H. Bacon, the candy man par excellence, has erected. He has recently refitted his place, added new cases to his counter, and upwards of fifty new varieties of candies to his stock, all new in Oakland. It is hard to tell which is the sweetest, the proprietor or his candies, and the young ladies flock there in hundreds daily.

Vocal and Instrumental Music.
We are pleased to learn that Mr. J. W. Yarndley, contemplates forming classes in this city, for the purpose of teaching vocal and instrumental music, and will make a commencement on Thursday evening next, the 16th instant, at College Hall. Mr. Yarndley is well and widely known as a teacher, and brings with him testimonials of value from both professional and non-professional gentlemen of high standing in this State. He has been for some time teaching in Sacramento, where he won golden opinions, and the pursuit of his profession here will be of great advantage to the musical portion of the community.

Police Court.
The cash receipts of the Police Court this morning were quite good, and the violators of municipal law were relieved of a fair sediment of spare cash. William Manning and William Cardy, handed over $25 each for indulging in battery, and for a similar indiscretion on the part of Michael Gleason $20 bail was forfeited.

Three additional twenties were raked in, one being from S. B. George for violating a city ordinance, the second from William Adlingham for disturbing the peace, and, the third, from Margaret Brayman, the affluent pauper, who had been arrested while engaged in soliciting alms. Lawrence McKinney, who found pleasure in being drunk and disorderly, when he awoke sober, regretted it to the extent of a golden eagle, while Charles Milward realized the fact that his debauch caused him just six dollars in addition to the price of drinks.

Messrs. Dunham & Lathrop's New Photographic Art Gallery, at No. 1167 Broadway, west side, between Thirteenth and Fourteenth streets, near the City Hall, is now open to the public. This is the only photographic establishment on the Pacific Coast, fitted up in modern style, where everything is on the ground floor, altogether dispensing with an "elevator" or stairs. Every style of work known in the business is here executed in artistic style, including the new promenade [illegible]

LOCAL JOTTINGS.

An Extended Summary of Interesting Matters Pertaining to Oakland.

Business is brisking.

Too much cloudy weather.

School warrants are being paid.

Runaways are becoming almost a daily occurrence.

Our Churches are all well attended on the Sabbath.

Oakland is quite fortunate in its general exemption from fires.

The wheat arrivals by rail yesterday aggregated twenty-seven cars.

And still they come! To-night's arrival of immigrants will number 150.

Ex Governor McCormick, of Arizona, made a visit to Oakland yesterday.

People should not throw refuse matter upon the commons or into the roadway.

Hoodlums who hurl rocks at cats and Chinamen are incurring the displeasure of the police.

It is rumored that a new evening paper is soon to make its appearance in San Francisco.

The young ladies of the Methodist Episcopal Church had a very interesting social last evening.

The Methodist Church structure on Fourteenth street is being rapidly carried forward to completion.

There are a half dozen schooners at our wharves. Brick, lumber, and wheat form their principal cargoes.

Last month the through passengers over the Central Pacific railroad were 7,824. Coming West, 1,621; going East, 6,233.

We don't believe that the young ladies of Oakland chew gum, though an irresponsible morning paper of this city says so.

Tramps, beggars and sneak thieves give this city a wide berth, as it does not encourage their reprehensible meanderings.

If the flesh of some of the early crowing roosters is as strong as their voice, chicken pot-pie must soon fall into dire disfavor.

Fires were not uncomfortable in offices and sitting rooms, this morning, as there was a very unpleasant dampness in the atmosphere.

Twenty thousand dollars of ten per cent. Oakland city bonds were sold yesterday, at private sale, for $1 05 and interest to date.

Rev. Mr. McLean will give a lecture to young women at the Congregational Church to-morrow evening at half-past seven o'clock.

A local cotemporary says that after next Wednesday quail can be shot with impunity. It is better to shoot them with a double-barreled shotgun.

The cut of the Main Lake sewer has reached Telegraph avenue, and before the 1st of November it will, in all probability, have tapped the Lake.

According to our exchanges, many tributes of respect are being paid to the memory of the late William C. Ralston in the commercial cities of the East.

Times changes popular expressions. It used to be "not accounting to Gunter," but now it is, in California, especially in this vicinity, "not according to the Code."

Ball's steam dredger is at work again in the bay this afternoon—and for the last time. A number of prominent steamship men have been favorably impressed with its workings.

The annual meeting of the Oakland Reading Room Association will be held at the Chapel of the Congregational Church on Monday evening next, to hear reports, elect officers and transact such business as may come before the Association.

The Union Savings Bank has commenced business in its new quarters in the Union Bank building. The rooms are not entirely completed, but sufficiently so for business purposes. The Gold Bank occupies the quarters formerly occupied by the Savings Bank.

The Calcutta, a British ship, which took a cargo of wheat from Oakland wharf last summer, has returned from Liverpool. Her master reports that the vessel was compelled to put into Rio Janeiro on the 24th of May, in consequence of a mutinous crew. The mutineers were discharged and an entirely new crew shipped, and the ship sailed again for this port on the 28th.

COUNTY CLIPPINGS.

Matters About Livermore and Alameda.

We take the following interesting gleanings from the Alameda Encinal:

The report of the town police for the month of August shows 32 arrests as follows: Malicious mischief, 2; petit larceny, 1; fighting, 2; exhibiting deadly weapon, 1; assault and battery, 1; disturbing the peace, 1; threats, 1; attempted rape, 1; drunk, 2; trespass, 11; misdemeanor, 9; arson, 1.

The wife of Nathan Porter, who was recently stricken with paralysis, is fast recovering. She has passed the critical point of her disease, and will soon be up and about.

At the Judicial election, in October, there will be two polling places for the town of Alameda—one embracing all the territory east of Chestnut street, from its easterly line, and the other all of the westerly portion of the town, from Chestnut street to the Point—the Board of Supervisors having so ordered at their last meeting.

The Board of Town Trustees, at their last meeting, formally granted permission to Messrs. Littlefield & Goldthwait to build a wharf at old Alameda Point, from the foot of Peach street to deep water in the bay. When built, this wharf will be the nucleus for a business point in this direction.

Subscriptions for the purchase of a Babcock Hook and Ladder apparatus progress slowly. There are now some $200 entered on the list. The amount required is about $700.

The Livermore Enterprise says:

The Principal of our public school and his several assistants have arranged to have a grand spelling match next week.

The Washington Hotel was reopened last week to the general public by Mr. Anton Bardellini. The rooms have been completely renovated from first to last with entirely new furniture.

The shipments of treasure have been during the month of August, from this place: Gold coin, $8,007 50; silver coin, $6,080 50; gold notes, $350 00; currency, $220 66. Total, $17,258 66.

Rev. Mr. Wible will deliver his valedictory sermon on to-morrow morning, at the usual hour, in the church at this place. Mr. Wible, since his stay amongst our people, has made many warm friends, and we are sure the church-going public will miss him. We do not know to what new field he has been assigned, but trust he may ever be as well liked as he has been in our valley.

On Thursday last there was shipped from this station, to different points; 100 tons of grain; 2 cars of cattle; 2 cars of hay; 1 car of wool; 1 car of wood; 1 car of old ties, and 1 car of general merchandise. The receipts was 2 cars of merchandise; 1 car of Merino bucks; 3 cars of lumber; 1 car of shakes, and 1 car of lime. For one day we think our little "burg" will compare favorably with any other town of more pretentions.

OVERLAND ARRIVALS TO-NIGHT.

Following is a list of passengers to arrive by overland train this evening:

THE RESULTS.

Extract from the Speech of J. Ross Browne, Esq., at the Celebration of the Territorial Pioneers, in Platt's Hall, on Thursday Evening.

The orator of the evening, at the celebration of the lately organized association of the Territorial Pioneers, at Platt's Hall, on Thursday night last, was J. Ross Browne, Esq., of this city. He summed up the results of the acquisition of California by the United States, as follows:

"A series of State and Territories, equal in the aggregate to a third of the North American Continent, has been brought within the harmonizing influences of labor and commerce. Cities, towns and villages have been built; telegraph lines chequer the Pacific slope; transcontinental communication by railroad has been established, binding the Atlantic to the Pacific; new and important branches of trade and manufactures, employing thousands of skilled laborers, have sprung into existence; an immense area of agricultural land has been opened to settlement and cultivation; nearly the whole of the vast region divided in part by the Rocky Mountains and stretching west to the Pacific Ocean; bordered on the north by the British Possessions, and on the south by Mexico, has been redeemed from the sway of the Nomadic tribes, and rendered available to the uses of civilized man. Surely this is no injury, either in a moral or physical point of view, to the human race. Within the brief space of a single generation more than a million of hardy, enterprising and intelligent freemen have found congenial homes and profitable occupation on the slopes of the Sierras and in the coast valleys of the Pacific. The States of California and Oregon have won into the brotherhood of States and Territories, Nevada, Washington, Idaho, Montana, Utah, Colorado, Wyoming, New Mexico and Arizona. In this vast range of country, so recently a wilderness, scarcely known save to trappers and explorers, all the industrial and professional pursuits are represented from the most primitive grades of muscular labor to the highest branches of science. But this is merely a local view of the subject, affecting our immediate interests. It is difficult to conceive the magnitude of the results which have grown of apparently trifling and inadequate causes. Under the mysterious guidance of Providence, the finding of a nugget of gold by James W. Marshall, while digging a mill-race at Coloma, on the 19th of January, 1848, has changed the condition and affected the international relations of the whole human race. It has released from bondage four millions of our fellow-beings in the United States, emancipated serfdom in Russia, enlarged the area of free suffrage in Great Britain; aroused the oppressed millions of the continent of Europe to the assertion of civil and political rights. It has opened up the vast Empire of China trade, commerce and diplomatic relations with all Christendom. It has overthrown the barriers which for centuries have excluded every nation, save the Dutch, from intercourse with Japan, and effected radical changes in the Japanese form of government. It stimulated California enterprise to similar discoveries in Australia. It has united the Eastern and Western Hemispheres by systems of steam communication, sweeping every coast and ocean; penetrating all the great marts of commerce. It has utilized the sand-beds of the sea; traversing the solitudes of the deep by electric cables flashing intelligence over every quarter of the globe, so that nations and individuals may now hold converse from the antipodes. The address was frequently applauded. Its closing portions described the rapid progress of the city in buildings and enterprise, and the magnificent scenery of the State."

ORANGE CULTURE.

The Views Put Forth by Dr. Strentzel in His Yesterday's Lecture.

The assembly hall of the University was well filled yesterday afternoon with visitors and students, who were anxious to hear the lecture of Dr. Strentzel on "Orange Culture."

He advised selecting the plumpest seeds, and planting them fresh in boxes with perforated bottoms, filled up with rich, mellow soil, that will not bake, dropping the seeds five inches apart, and cover one inch. Keep the box in a warm room and the soil damp. When the young plants appear, give plenty of air and sunshine, and sprinkle them every evening with slightly tepid water. If there is no frost apprehended and the nights are warm, keep your boxes out of doors, sheltered from the wind and burning sun. A screen made of unbleached muslin will answer for both. Fork over the surface between the plants occasionally, and enrich toward midsummer with decomposed manure. The seedlings should attain the hight of 12 or 18 inches during the season, but be not too ambitious to stimulate the exuberant growth; rather shorten in the rampant shoots and secure a stocky, symmetrical growth.

During the winter keep them in a dry, airy place, with a temperature never under 30 degrees, and not much over 50 degrees; and in the Spring transplant them to larger and deeper boxes. This is the time to graft them over, if you know of a tree bearing superior fruit, even if it is seedling, or a particular foreign variety from which you could obtain scions. Do so at once, and thus early-grafted trees make a healthier and more rapid growth than those grafted when the tree is older. Except in very favorable locations the young tree should remain in boxes the second year, affording a greater facility for sheltering during the winter, and be transplanted to the open ground the third year. The distance between trees planted in a grove will be controlled by the space at command. If twenty or more feet is required in larger plantations and a southern clime, a small grove will do well if planted twelve to fifteen feet apart, as it will require ten to twelve years to fill that space. The orange is a rapid grower under favorable conditions, but may remain stationary if treated inconsiderately. Holes for the reception of the trees should be at least four feet in diameter, and as many deep, and more if the ground has a hard clay substratum, not draining well, as stagnant water around the roots is very injurious. The bottom of the whole, if covered several inches deep with broken bones, charcoal, etc., would facilitate drainage. Then fill up with the richest mellow top-soil, compact it in the whole by pressing down with the back of a hoe, and not by solid treading. Young orange trees can be transplanted almost any time if known precautions are observed to move them with the adhearing ball of earth covering all the roots. Plant them about six inches higher than the surface land to allow for gradual settling of the loosened soil. Deep planting should be guarged against, as it sickens the trees and retards their growth. The ground should be mixed with partly decomposed long manure and kept moist and the trees in a growing condition. Check exuberant growth by nipping the ends of the shoots, building up a symmetrical, slightly pyramidal form. Nothing secures early bearing more than judicious pruning of the leading shoots, thus checking the sap from production of superfluous wood.

MY WINTER RIDE.

[FROM THE GERMAN OF UHLAND.]

Forth I ride into gloom and night
Where neither moon nor stars give light,
And cold, fierce winds are hissing;
Yet oft I've been this same, same way
When the golden sunbeams laughed in play,
And the breezes all were kissing.

Forth I ride into darkling ground,
Where bare trees roar with a savage sound,
And dying leaves are falling;
Yet here in the time of the roses' bloom
My love and I were wont to roam
Where all to love was calling.

Alas! the sunbeams now have fled,
And every sweet, sweet rose is dead—
My love fell death has taken—
And here I ride in storm and night
Without one single ray of light
My cold, dead heart to waken.

SATURDAY SKETCHES.

Some Select Characters for Supper Table Talk—The Bright, the Dark and the Grotesque Sides of Human Nature.

The Saturday supper table is the supper table of all the week. Around it gather the merchant, the mechanic, the professional man, the laboring man, all glad with the knowledge that they have completed their six days' labor, and that a day of rest is close approaching. It is at their supper table on this particular evening that they can calmly discuss past and coming events; that they can read their family newspaper most closely, and criticise the oddities, short-comings, and goodness which enter the composition of people who make up the various classes of society.

Society having some peculiar and interesting features and characters, we propose to make a passing reference to some of them; and we will begin with the

HAPPY HOUSEHOLD.

It is a beautiful picture—so many bright, happy faces all in sweet accord. Father and mother, sons and daughters, sisters and brothers, all dwelling harmoniously together, each vieing with the other to be instrumental in promoting and preserving the harmony of the whole family. So beautiful is it, that we cannot deal lightly with any one of its features. It is a model for all to pattern after and ill-regulated households, if they desire improvement, cannot do better than to adopt the precepts of a well regulated household, which is always a truly happy family; and, from whence does all its happiness arise? From the endeavors of each of its members to yield rather than to exact. This is based upon the theory on which society and society's laws rest. That, for the good of the whole community, the individual has to yield a portion of his liberty. If it were not for this, liberty would grow into encroachment, encroachment into licentiousness; and, licentiousness is virtually but another name for crime. Unhappily, however, many of the members of society do not regard, or at least, they openly violate society laws, to a greater or less extent, and the evils which follow in successive trains are innumeral. Society, itself, grows restless under restraint, and this is the reason why communities disagree. Restraint may at first seem a very harsh master, but, when we yield him obedience, we see how very just he is. With families, like other bodies, there must be individual restraint, and self-denial on the part of each member to secure justice and happiness to the whole number. Where we find this abnegation to exist, we discover the greatest amount of happiness; and, no where is it practiced so much and with such little apparent effort, as in the Happy Household. Its success is the best proof of its efficacy. Kindness, like virtue, always brings its reward. Let it, like charity, commence at home, and it will soon be disseminated abroad. By its exercise we love more and are loved more. It causes a purer and stronger love to spring up in the breast of all. Home grows more attractive under its influence, and every one should strive to make home both attractive and happy.

THE DISCONSOLATE WIDOWER.

This demure individual wears a sheathing of crape around his hat for a short period and then forgets that he ever had a wife—which is quite natural, considering his surroundings. His season of mourning did not extend over a great period, but to make it somewhat longer than otherwise, he generally succeeds in turning night into morning. He carries a dead latch-key, comes home at the dead hour of night, without ever thinking of his dead wife, unless he has been drowning his sorrow in the bowl by pouring spirits down to keep spirits up. Then, as a dirge to the memory of the departed spouse, he sings the pathetic ballad commencing, "My wife's dead and I'll get another one!"—which, frequently comes out to the very letter. But the disconsolate widower generally maintains a cosy home. He has a housekeeper sometimes old and ugly—at others, young and pretty. To the former, he is penurious, but, to the latter, liberal. If he have children, which is generally the case, he keeps them in continual fear, as to the introduction of a step-mother, which, in their eyes, is a step in the wrong direction—a sore abomination to the well being and harmony of any household; and again, they look upon such a person as an interloper who has a sinister eye upon property, which in due course of time would belong to them solely were she not in existence. To consult his children's wishes on the subject of a second-hand mother is no part of the disconsolate bachelor's programme. No; he remains in single harness, or steps into double traces, just as he desires, irrespective of the wishes and opinions of third parties, who are sure to get cut off with a shilling or less if they demur to what the great lord of creation determines. His authority must be respected—this he has learned in the time of her whom he first wed; and the power a man once has, he never yields if he can retain it. No matter how old he be, he can find among the gentler sex plenty who will accept him if he but "suggest;" and, this he knows. He tries to make the best of it, and in the very effort, frequently fails. Often, when stiffened with rheumatism, gout and age, he throws himself away upon a lass, young enough to be his granddaughter. But his vanity is tickled—he is pleased—soon dies and is interred, amid the interminable wrangle of his family, in some out-of-the-way spot, perhaps without as much as a rude board to mark his resting place.

THE LANGUISHING WIDOW.

How sweet she looks in her somber weeds; and, how we pity her in her sorrow and grief! She refuses company—ah! well she may, for it is conventional! At least one year does she have to sit in sack-cloth and ashes. Then, in what a short time, does her dark mourning fade into gray, and then gay. Well, there is limit to a all things—to sorrow as well as to pleasure; and, the sunshine looks brighter than ever when the heavy, black clouds have passed away. She may be the eldest of quite a family of daughters; and yet, what a host of suitors are ready to do her reverence. She hears them sigh and groan; plead and moan, yet she is obdurate. She can take her pick and she knows it! She has an experience that is of value to her. Small talk and outside show only excite her pity—not her love. It is the stumbling block of men with widows—hollow words alone find favor with sentimental young ladies. The languishing widow is the paragon of neatness; and, her bewitching smiles are suggestively "killing." Certainly, they have a very peculiar effect upon those susceptiable to female blandishments. An eminent philosopher, who was brought into notoriety by a celebrated English novelist, regarded as the best piece of advice he could give his son, was to "beware of widows." They have disturbed the equanimity of many a man, otherwise than in love matters. But the languishing widow is the most dangerous of all other widows, for she has little hands, tiny feet, as also piercing eyes, which look a man through in an instant. They are barbed arrows which pierce his heart and render him desperately helpless. He allows himself to become and be regarded as a first-class fool for her sake, during an infinite period. He does all sorts of odd things which are only to be laughed at. Yet, in his blind infatuation, he cannot see what a fool somebody is forcing him to be. After the languishing widow has all her sport out of him, she drops him, and allows him to flounder as best he may upon the sea of perplexity. She weighs all men in the balance and, when she finds one not wanting, she takes him, for it is she who generally does all the courting. Let not all widows, however clever though they may be, imagine themselves a stunning widow, for she is a creature who exists for a short time and never dies—the reason of this is, that before death takes her in his relentless and icy grasp, she is the kind wife of some good man who buries her decently, like a wife ought to be buried, when she has faithfully performed her duty in a large family to the best of her ability.

THE DEVOTED WIFE.

Who hasn't one—and, who, not having one, wouldn't have one if he could? What a convenience she is to the well-being and smooth-working of a household. No piece of intricate machinery ever invented can supply her place. Working from early morn till late at night, she is always cheerful and makes all around her happy. She is as pretty as she is industrious, and she never appears to grow tired or old. She never grumbles at having too much to do, but is always anxious to do more. The rebellious toes and heels of her husband, which frequently usher themselves through numerous pairs of socks, are soon covered by her ever-ready needle. Though she darns her husband's clothing, she never darns him. With her, the course of true love runs as placidly as a stream of pure water down a gentle declivity. Moral suasion and not spanking has made her children obedient. Woman's rights do not weigh heavily upon her mind, for her goodness compels her husband to yield all and more than she desires to claim. Her little household absorbs her attention, and if she had a vote, she would vote all termigants bores. In politics, she is of the same opinion as her husband, and his religion is her religion. Charity though beginning at home, is not solely confined there by her. She is a sweet ministering angel beyond the pale of her own beloved household and where sickness or distress prevails in her neighborhood she is always found doing her part in its alleviation. Her house always looks neat and comfortable. All within it is cheerful. Her neatly spread table is always tempting and her husband always has a good appetite. The children are all well fed and neatly cleathed. She is the most valuable and ornamental piece of furniture which a man can place in his home. A time being in prosperity, a firm and devoted companion in adversity is the devoted wife.

THE ANXIOUS MAMMA.

She is generally fat, fair, forty and fashionable, possessing a large family of handsome daughters, all lovely and marriageable—everyone of them—and nobody has yet taken so much as one off her hands. Poor, disconsolate thing, what shall she do with these expensive parlor ornaments—those tender, little bits of embodied silk, muslin and lace, flesh and bones, ingeniously woven together, and who, for many long, weary years, have caused mamma so much solicitude. Put them up at auction and knock them down to the first and best bidder? Oh, no! that would never do! Better keep them on hand a while longer—they won't spoil by age, oh, no! Some titled Charles Augustus or fortunate California street stock speculator, may unexpectedly come along, and carry the eldest off. Then there will be aristocracy in the family, and the other young ladies will soon be gobbled up by the new brother-in-law's male friends. Thus the anxious mamma argues to herself while she does the hard work of the household, and bedecks her girls with fineries for the balls, the parties and the theatre. She is a kind soul, even willing to do the heavy part of the courting for the daughters when some eligible gentleman comes along. Anxiety may kill her yet, for she does not want to see any of her girls "old maids," and Martha Jane is already twenty-nine; only think of it!

NEW YORK, September 10.—The following has been issued to-day: "Office of the Directors of the U. S. Cable Company, New York, September 10.—Notice is hereby given that on and after the 15th of September the Company's cables will be opened for the transmission of messages between America and Europe and the East generally. The tariff rates will shortly be published. The whole system of the company between New York and London will be worked by the company's own operators. The name of the place from which messages originate will be transmitted free of charge. The company's officers are at No. 16 Broad street, where messages will be received and at all offices of the Atlantic and Pacific and Franklin Telegraph Companies through the United States. Also at the office of the Dominion Telegraph of Canada. The Anglo-American Telegraph Company announces that on and after the 15th inst. the tariff per word between New York and east of New York and the United Kingdom and France will be twenty-five cents in gold."

NEW YORK, September 10.—A Herald special from Philadelphia gives in full the anonymous letters addressed to Ross by the abductors of his son Charley. The letters demanded money before restoring the child, and say that "putting detectives on his track will only defeat his plans,' and if an approach is made to the place where they have hidden the child it would be the signal for his instant assassination; that money alone could fetch him out alive. In a letter dated July 6th the abductors demand $20,000 for the child's release. They ask Ross for his answer to letters personally. In a subsequent letter they submit a form of answer to be used by Ross—viz: "Ross will come to terms," or "will not come to terms." The letters are by turns explanatory and argumentative.

MEMPHIS (TENN), September 10.—The following from Mississippi to-night explains the telegram sent from Edwards to-day to Attorney General Pierrepont: "Jackson September 10.—To Attorney General Pierrepont, Washington:—Did not send dispach this morning. There is no protection for life to colored people in my county. The telegram sent was presented to me by the Captain of the military organization there for safety to self and property. I could not do otherwise. I am free to confess my knowledge and convictions are to the contrary. For my personal safety I desire the telegram sent by me to be kept private.

W. H. HARNEY, Sheriff."

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—A Washington special says that Fred. Douglass, speaking of the Mississippi troubles, is reported to have said that wholesale atrocity and murders like those recently committed could only be perpetrated with the approval or connivance of the property-holding classes of the South. If the negroes must die at the South, his advice is, let them all sell their lives as dearly as possible; let it be seen by those cowardly mobocrats that in attempting to slaughter the black men, they invite the knife to their own throats and fire and rapine to their hearthstones, and they will cease.

NEW YORK, September 10.—The following call is issued in New York: "A special meeting of the Associated Pioneers of the Territorial days of California will be held at the Sturtevant House, Monday evening, to give expression of their feelings of sympathy for the misfortunes which overtook the late William C. Ralston of San Francisco, to whose energy and industry California is in debted for so much of her present prosperity."

JACKSON (Miss.), September 10.—One hundred men in this city reported to the Governor to-day that they would cheerfully go to any part of the State to preserve the peace and protect the rights of citizens; that they did not know there was any insurrection in Hinds or any other county until they saw his dispatches to Washington, but were nevertheless ready to respond. It is understood that one hundred men of Lowndes county have also reported by letter to the Governor to the same effect.

WASHINGTON, September 10.—By direction of the Secretary of the Treasury the following changes in the station of Internal Revenue Supervisors have been ordered, to take effect at once: Louis N. Foulke, from headquarters at San Francisco to headquarters at Richmond; Supervisor Hawley, from headquarters at New York to headquarters at San Francisco.

ROME, September 10.—A deputation on behalf of the American residents, both Catholic and Protestant, visited Cardinal McCloskey to-day and presented to him, as a token of esteem, a complete Cardinal's dress, and a mitre set with precious stones, with an address of good wishes and veneration.

Enjoy the Luxury of an Easy Shave and the advantage of having your Hair Carefully and Scientifically Cut, by going to the Grand Central Hotel Shaving and Hair Dressing, Saloon, Twelfth Street. Easy chairs, good razors and polite attention. SAMUEL PARSONS Proprietor.

LADIES' HAIR DRESSER.—Miss Cradock, Room 21, Central Block, over Schrieber's furniture store, has always on hand a large stock of hair. Weaving, curling and combing made up. Ladies attended at their residences.

Where to Go.—If you wish to hear superior music, and indulge in a glass of beer, go to the Teutonia Hall, 473 Eighth street. There is no better place in town. All kinds of wines, liquors and cigars. Beer, 5 cents. An elegant $5,000 orchestrion has just been put in.

NEW BOOKS.

Interesting Reading Added to the Oakland Library.

The following books were received to-day at the Oakland Library. Many of them are new, and all of them are very interesting, as their titles will suggest:

Pre-Historic Races of the United States; The Way We Live Now; Red as a Rose is She; Trespassers; Shirley; A Simpleton; The Wandering Heir; Seven Daughters; Epochs of History; The French Revolution; The Houses of Lancaster and York; Shiftless Folks; Wonders of Sculpture; Mrs. Skagg's Husbands; A Journey to the North Pole; Dombey and Son; Old Curiosity Shop; Egypt, Ancient History from the Monuments; A Song of Italy; The Fisher Maiden; Pericles and Aspasia; Arne, the Happy Boy; Red Court Farm; East Lynne; Little Classics; Poems Lyrical, Mystery, Fated to be Free; Swinburne's Poems and Ballads; White Lies; Transatlantic Sketches; The Green Gate; The Caxtons; Breakfast, Luncheon and Tea; Nick of the Woods; Phil., the Fiddler; Paul, the Peddler; Slow and Sure; Julius, the Street Boy; The Young Botanist; File No. 113; Ralph Wilton's Weird; Bric-a-Brac; Thackery and Dickens; Doing and Dreaming, Munfred; Insectiverous Plants; St. Simon's Niece; Robinson Crusoe; Tricotun and Puck.

JUDICIAL CONVENTION.

Hon. Sam Bell McKee Renominated By Acclamation.

The joint Democratic Convention for the Third Judicial District, met pursuant to call, at the office of W. H. Glascock, this afternoon.

On motion of Col. J. C. Hayes, John C. Booth, of San Francisco, was chosen Chairman, and A. H. Griffith, of Brooklyn, Secretary.

The object of the Convention being stated by the Chairman, J. M. Estudillo, of San Leandro, placed in nomination for Judge of the Third Judicial District, Hon. Sam. Bell McKee.

The nomination was seconded by R. H. Magill, of Alameda Township.

There being no other nominations, Judge McKee was unanimously nominated.

The convention then adjourned.

Shall California be Represented?

If California is to be properly represented at the Centennial Exposition, it is time to begin to talk business. This putting off things until the eleventh hour, may do in local fairs and exhibitions, but it will not do in this case, and is altogether inexcusable. Ample notice has been given to allow the most elaborate preparation. But there is always too much beating about the bush in these matters, and everybody waits for somebody else to take hold and do something; the result is a damaging delay, at the end of which something in the make-shift line is done which is divested of all responsibility, and which is not likely to receive the considerate allowance to which it is supposed to be entitled.

There are at present reasons for apprehending that our exposition at the Centennial will partake somewhat of this character. When the eleventh hour comes and it is not far distant the excitement attending it will no doubt stimulate some one to take hold of certain points and make an unsatisfactory exhibit of the resources of California. It would be better for us not to be represented there at all than to be misrepresented. The people of California ought to take this matter in hand, and not leave it with irresponsible adventurers, who assume the position of representative men in various matters; and though their acts are not endorsed, they are allowed to pass because they are allowed to remain uncensured; and are too generally tolerated on the generous supposition that they are honest enthusiasts.

This matter, of properly representing the condition and resources of California, should be divided and subdivided into districts and neighborhoods. Here is where we should give special consideration to the great diversity of the country.

The products and peculiar characteristics of a locality will not be appreciated or receive due consideration in this matter except by the residents thereof. We hope the true representatives of these localities will at once make a selection of what will best represent them at Philadelphia, and take hold of the matter in a business-like way availing themselves, to the fullest extent, of the services of the appointed officials and of all the rights and privileges which the Exposition affords.

After making a judicious selection of exhibits and exhibitors, the plans of operation should not be allowed to lag or be diverted from their proper course, from want of public interest and good advice, or cramped or crippled for want of pecuniary support. It will take some money; and this burden should not be shouldered on a few who are liberal in these matters; and when "the needful" is provided, it should not be left at the disposal of those who might be tempted to use the Exposition for their own gain or glory.

This matter of California's representation at the Centennial Exposition is really an important one. If we have within our State objects that, according to the somewhat hackneyed term, "must be seen to be appreciated," let us as far as possible, place them at the great Philadelphia Exposition, where they may be seen by all the world, as it were, and they will not fail to be appreciated.—Mining and Scientific Press.

Notice.

CONSUMERS OF WATER FOR IRRIGATION purposes are hereby notified that the supply of water is so rapidly diminishing, that it will be absolutely necessary to limit the use of water on lawns and gardens to the least amount necessary to keep them alive during the remainder of the season. The water has been used for such purposes too freely heretofore, in spite of the earnest remonstrances of officers of the Company. All consumers will admit that they have scarcely been interrupted in their appropriation of the supply up to this time. It is now necessary to limit the use of water for irrigation purposes to twice a week, and in order that there may be a good supply, or head, to divide the city into districts, and give to each district certain days for irrigation. The following plan has been adopted, and it is hoped that consumers will aid the Company in carrying out the necessary measures:

First District—All that part of the city north of Fourteenth street and east of Market street, and all of East Oakland, irrigate on Monday and Thursday.

Second District—All that part of the city south of Fourteenth street and east of Market street, on Tuesday and Friday.

Third District—All west of Market street, Wednesday and Saturday.

It is thought that the increased force of the water secured by this plan will render its use far more satisfactory and effective.

Consumers are cautioned against the use of water at night, and are particularly requested to keep all their water fixtures in good order.

Respectfully,
C. DRIER, Cashier
